Trevor Tordjman

Bucky

Trevor Tordjman voices Bucky, Seabrook High's over-confident class president, in "ZOMBIES: The Re-Animated Series."

Tordjman also stars as charming and enthusiastic Parker Preston, the part-owner of Kikiwaka Ranch who doesn't always see eye-to-eye with Lou, in Disney Channel's comedy series "BUNK'D."

Tordjman is an accomplished dancer (hip-hop, breakdancing and tap). He is also known for his role as a series regular on five seasons of "The Next Step," the highest-rated teen show on Canada's Family Channel. It also airs on the BBC and CBC networks. Among his other credits are host, choreographer and performer in "The Next Step Live World Tour" and acting roles in the CBC/Family Channel series "Lost & Found Music Studios" as well as the TV movie "Full Out," opposite Jennifer Beals. He will next be seen guest-starring in the Apple+ series "The Studio." In addition to on-screen credits, Tordjman most recently created, produced and hosted the digital talk show series "What's Up North" alongside Instagram.

Born in Southern Ontario, Canada, Tordjman is the third of four children. He grew up dancing in his mother's dance studio, choreographing and performing routines with his siblings and cousins. At age 11, he decided to parlay his passion for dance and entertainment into a career in on-camera acting.

He currently resides in Los Angeles, California.
